CHOYNSKI WHIPS HALL.

Cnocks Out the Australian with a Right Hook in the Third Round. Australia, in the third round to-night before the Nonpareil Athletic Club at Music Hall in the presence of some 2,500 people. It was announced that the fight was for the light heavy-weight championship, limand Australian Jimmy Ryan. Tom Williams, of England; Lawrence Fitzpatrick and Jim Watts were behind Choynski. The fight was lively enough while it lasted with the honors possibly in Hall's favor during the first two rounds, but in the third Choynaki used his right and left effectively a number of times, and when but a half minute of the third round remained Choynski landed several rights and lefts in succession, sending Hall to the floor, where he remained until carried to his corner after the referee had counted ten seconds. Instantly there were cries of "Fake!" from all quarters of the hall, and a more disapointed crowd never left a ringside in this

It was a right hook on the jaw that sent Hall down, and from the spectators' standpoint was not delivered with sufficient force to have put the Australian out. Choynski, so Hall claims, landed a left blow below the belt and near the groin, which Hall explained after the fight took all the steam out of him and left him indifferent as to the

It was a twenty-round bout between "Spider" Gable and Orville Young, colored, lightweights. The fight was to settle a $200 wager made by two business men, James O'Neil on Young and Dixie Mahoney on Gable. From the start Gable was the Bend Greens lost to Fort Wayne by a score aggressor and had three points to one, but Young was cautious and when he did land it was in counting territory. Gable put Young on the ropes, which sagged and the men fell. This caused the howl of an alleged foul. Young was fresh but refused to listen to the referee, "Sonny" Sharp. Previous to this bout John Crevisson and Edward Shaw went six rounds to a draw Barney Riley, the former well-known featherweight, and "Sonny" Sharp were matched at the ringside for fifteen rounds. The fights occur at West Side Park pavilion

Kid Parker Punishes Perry Queenan. DENVER, Col., Sept. 25 .- Kid Parker, Denver's rising young lightweight, administered a terrible beating to Perry Queenan, of Chicago, to-night, before the Colorado Athletic Association, getting the decision at the end of the twentieth round. Queenan was completely outelassed. His defense was good, but only by repeated clinching and running away did he manage to last the limit. Parker did nearly all of the leading from start to finish, and after the tenth | within the following: round, the only time when Queenan attempted to mix matters, had things his own made desperate efforts to finish him, but Queenan's ducking and foot work saved him from a knockout. Mysterious Billy Smith Wins. DENVER, Col., Sept. 25,-"Mysterious" Billy Smith, of New York, knocked out Bob Douglass, of St. Louis, in the fourth round of what was to have been a twentyround contest before the Olympic Theater Club to-night. The bout was even during the first three rounds, but few blows of consequence being struck by either man. Smith played a waiting game throughout and Douglass's blows had no apparent effect upon him. In the fourth round the men started to mix matters, but a terrible left punch on the stomach put Douglass down and out. After the referee counted ten Freeman, Portland, Ore., second; F. A. Mc-Farland, San Jose, third; Tom Cooper, De-Smith picked Douglass up and carried him to his corner amid cheers from the audience. Douglass, though game, was clearly

In the preliminary Jack Kane, of San Francisco, knocked out Martin Maloney, of San Francisco, in the second round of what was scheduled as a ten-round bout. Callaban Defeats Richie.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 .- At the Coney Island Sporting Club to-night Tim Callahan, of Philadelphia, defeated Johnny Richie, of any other English-speaking woman-which Chicago, in a twenty-round bout. Richie was decidedly overmatched. George Cole, colored, of Trenton, defeated Charley Johnson, of St. Paul, in a twentyfive-round bout. The colored man was much the stronger and took the aggressive from the start, knocking Johnson down frequently and slamming him all over the ring. Johnson took his punishment with extraordinary gameness and lasted the full twenty-five rounds, but there was no question about the justness of the referee's award.

People on the Line of Parade Have Many Friends.

New York Commercial Advertiser. "The person who is unfortunate enough to own a steam yacht or who has a house, on or near the line of march of the Dewey land parade has to exercise a great deal of tact just now," said a widely-known New Yorker on Wednesday. "I know I have a large circle of acquaintances, but I never realized until this week how constantly I must be in the minds of my friends or what a large place is reserved for me in the affections of my out-of-town relatives. Ah, well, it is hardly just to all to be so sarcastic, but positively the reason for all this precipitous renewing of former acquaintanceships and these letters from relatives. tives saying they are on the point of coming to the city is so obvious that I am really ski, of California, knocked out Jim Hall, of days in advance. I am not exaggerating when I say that I have had enough appeals made to me directly or in the form of insinuations for opportunities to see the land and water parades to crowd a large house and the deck of a small steamboat with men, women and children. My bulk of tact is having a severe test."

is about to be brought out in London and she has already, within twelve hours of her landing, had an offer for an American tour. But all this does not interfere with the fact that Alma d'Alma's adventures in Morocco were different from those of is the excuse for all that will be said. Alma d'Alma, who was once the wife of Rudolph Aronson and graced an "Erminie" chorus when "Erminie" was the most popular thing in New York, took caravan and went inland in Morocco last March. It was her intention to meet the Sultan, see the inside of his harem and besides find out all about the mosques. The Sultan Factory at BROCKTON, MASS. himself is the most dangerous autocrat of autocrats. Alma d'Alma has good looks, nerve and great confidence in herself. So she determined to do all these things. "Yes," she said yesterday in her apartments at her hotel, where her Moors sat about her, "I saw the Sultan and the Sul-There shouldn't be any serious difficulty about her, "I saw the Sultan and the Su sides spending a night and half a day in the harem and taking part in the services bowed.) "He's thirty and he's my hero. He killed two men who stole me when I went into the mosque. He got hurt, too, himself, poor fellow. But he got off by paying $20. All he's got to do now is to look out for the relatives of the men he killed. "Now, 'his is the whole story-from the trouble in the mosque to my experience with the Sultan-and he's eighteen years old and beautiful, as they think in that "I had arrived at the mosque of Sidi-Kassan Boassyria, when I made up my mind that now was the time to see what the mosques were like. I was disguised as a native, and went into the temple as boldly as possible, when two men began talking and apparently made reference to me. Sa-laam Hallel there was listening, and when he heard them say 'Eschrania Kaffa,' which means damned Christian, he promptly sent back a messenger to Tangiers for assis-He knew that I was in for it. "I had left my caravan at a little distance from the mosque, and before I could get to it when I came out two big black grabbed me and made off with me Just before we arrived at a town called Zarhoan and when I had about given up all hope of anything less than sale as slave, Salaam overtook us, and in the fight which followed he killed one of the mon with a pistol and the other with a knife."

The knife which did the work was shown. It is a short, curved weapon, which appears just the thing to completely open whatever it strikes, whether it were man or beast. "In two hours our caravan overtook us and we went to Fez, where my hero's wounds were dressed and I met Bah Hamid, who is forty years old, uglier than he is aged, and is the actual ruler in place of the Sultan. "And here is where my real experience begins. You must not mind my telling it to you substantially as it was, for at this distance it does not seem so very awful. "I was a visitor at the haram for one night and half a day. When I came to Bah I was fagged out with the excitement and fatigue. Bah led me into the house, which is where most of the sultan's wives and friends dwell. I had to take a bath, according to etiquette. Bah Hamid called two slaves and I was turned over to them. On the way to this bath I saw many women. There was no talk. Everything was carried on in pantomime. Every now and then I could hear music, but the musicians were not visible. There were palm and orange trees growing all about, and the air was heavy with rather pleasant odors. "The bathtub was a hole in the floor. You used steam instead of water, and this found its escape up through a hole in the roof, which was slated over. There were no windows. The light came from holes in the "When I had been bathed to the satisfac-tion of my attendants I was given a long white dress-a zug doan. I liked the look of that, and there was no doubt but that it fitted well. I was then led back through the rooms and halls whence I had come and put in a little room, where I lay down at my ease. Soon they brought me kuss kuss, which is prepared food made of grain, with butter and almonds and raisins, and a fricaseed chicken on top. One of the at-tendants stuck his hand into this mixture and brought forth a solid ball of the mess. I ate it. I was getting so used to all this that everything went. "Then came a slave and the tea tray and its mixture. This was succeeded by the orange water slave, who insisted upon sprinkling me with something which was supposed not only to leave behind a most delightful odor, but to impart much softness and beauty to the skin and hair. "I had fallen asleep for a minute some time later when there was a commotion and then they roused me and dressed me in beautiful cloth and led me a long distance. I wondered what was coming next. of three sisters. She told me a sad story about the hard lot of one of her sisters and said she hoped nothing so awful would come to me. After that I was taken into the presence of the Sultan Abdul Aziz-and Alma d'Alma smiled and continued, in answer to a request, that she tell what the Sultan looked like, as all Sultans are objects of interest. "He's a bit shorter than I am-five feet four, I should say-and of light mahogany color. He has a thick protruding underlip, which the people of his country consider one of the greatest marks of masculine beauty. He's slender and not overstrong."

The Sultan gave her presents-uncut emeralds and funny carved antique silver and gold ornaments-many of them difficult for a layman to describe. Besides her hero Alma d'Alma has with her Abdul Kadar, a slave boy of eleven. He was a present from some one, she said -but she would not say whom. The other Moor, Massowaga, is eighty-nine years old He has been a slave to four Sultans, and is a story-teller and an amuser of the women Alma d'Alma had all kinds of trouble to get her live jewels out of the country, for no subject of the Sultan can leave without his written permission. Among the musical instruments in her rooms are a gambry, a derbouka, which looks as much like an inverted flower pot as anything else, and a thar, which is a double tambourine. She has Moorish dresses and costumes by the score. She came in on the Aller, from Gibraltar, yesterday morning. Alma d'Alma is a clever, handsome woman. She is of fair complexion and fetching gray eyes.

CITY NEWS NOTES.

Newell Metzger, of Anderson, has taken the position in the office of the clerk of the Supreme Court which was formerly occupied by Miss Clara Hess. To-morrow the Indiana Medical College will begin its fall and winter course of lectures. Although the number of students cannot be determined until after Wednes-day's enrollment, indications point to a larger attendance than last year. Col. Eli F. Ritter and Wilson S. Doan have been employed as attorneys for the Indiana Anti-saloon League. They will superintend the legal department of work and will assist local leagues throughout the State in prosecuting saloon cases free of charge. For Stealing from a Resort Keeper. May Evans, who has for several months been an inmate of Libbie Collins's resort at 140 South Senate avenue, was arrested yesterday by Detectives Asch and Dugan and charged with grand larceny. For some time the Collins woman has missed articles of wearing apparel, lacer embroidery, and about two weeks ago a south kin cape, valued at about $75, disappeared. The suspected some of the girls in the house, but made no accusations. Sunday evening she spoke of her losses and said she intended sending for the detectives. Yesterday morning when the porter went out of the house the missing cape and one or two small articles were found on the ground underneath the window of the room occupied by the Evans woman. When the detectives were called she denied any knowledge of the matter, but finally confessed. A Methodists' Monthly Paper. Twenty-five Methodist ministers of the city met yesterday afternoon and discussed the advisability of establishing a monthly paper in this city in the interest of Marion county Methodism. Rev. T. A. Goodsociation, at Meridan-street Church, Oct. 9
